M. E. Otis Extols Scholar in Talk To Senior Class

Federal Judge Gives Fine Commencement Address To Graduates—Pays Fine Tribute to Former Teacher, Mr. Hawkins.

"I summon you today to an active life of scholarship and research. Today I extol the scholar. Consider his contributions to the world, he, the transmitter of all old truth and discoverer of all new truth."

In these words Judge Merrill E. Otis of Kansas City, urged the College graduating class to a continued life of scholarship in his commencement address given to a capacity auditorium Wednesday morning. His address was well-timed, interesting and contained much food for thought.

Mr. Annett played the processional for the members of the graduating class and faculty who marched from the Residence Hall to the College auditorium. Preceding Mr. Otis' talk, Miss Dvorak played in a pleasing manner 'Vieuxtemps' "Second Concerto."

Judge Otis is a graduate of the Maryville High School and a former resident of Nodaway County. During his address he paid a high and well-deserved tribute to Mr. Hawkins, our Latin teacher, who was superintendent of the Maryville Schools when Mr. Otis was graduated.

"Professor C. A. Hawkins is the greatest teacher I ever knew," said Judge Otis. "I imagine he has not accumulated a great fortune but he has enriched the lives of thousands of boys and girls who have gone out from his classrooms."

Mr. Otis discussed the friendships made in College. He described the classical friendships made with great men and women of past ages, the friendships made with members of the faculty, and the priceless friendships made with classmates and students.

"This is a great day in the lives of the members of the graduating class from this College, which, under such able administration, has made such splendid progress, Mr. Otis continued.

"Today you seniors are passing from its portals. You are looking back to-day over these four years and looking forward to the divergent paths, one of which you must take. This is a momentous hour for you, who are about to enter the school of life. I know of no hour for day more significant than graduation unless it was the first day you entered school."

"On that day was presented to you the most valuable possessions of the human race, the A, B, C's and the numerals from one to ten. What antique compares with these 'symbols'? These have opened to us the treasure chambers of the world, the accumulated possessions of civilization."

"These symbols have made possible for you friendships with the greatest spirits of the world. He who has not acquired those ancient friendships have failed to possess something invaluable. Those friendships are one of the great contributions of College life."

"We want no thin veneer of culture; we want no intellectual aristocracy of special privilege; we do not seek alone increased earning capacity; we seek here to create only a genuine love of true scholarship."

Following his address Dean Colbert presented the graduating class to President Lamkin. In addition to the degree graduates there were 69 candidates for the thirty-hour certificate and 64 candidates for the sixty-hour certificates.

President Lamkin announced that Grace Foster who won the A. A. U. W. medal for the highest ranking senior. He also announced that Paul Stone, orator, Richard Baker, extemporaneous speaker, and Byron Beavers, Floyd Cook, Paul Stone and Burdette Yeo, debaters, would be awarded gold medals for participation in inter-collegiate forensic activities. Silver medals will be awarded to Clarence Bush, David Max, Fred Street and Keith Swisher for debate work.

The commencement exercises were closed with the singing of "Alma Mater."

The following received their degrees Wednesday morning:

Traditional Cane Of Seniors Given To Junior Class

Following a fourteen-year-old custom the Senior Class of 1926, through its president, Grace Graves, presented the class of '27 with the traditional senior cane. The presentation was made just before the class play Tuesday evening.

The class of 1913 originated the custom of the cane, a symbol of leadership and achievement. Each year the cane is presented to a succeeding class a gold band, engraved with the class numeral, is added. There are now thirteen bands on the cane.

Grace Graves, senior president, in presenting the cane to Burdette Yeo, junior president said:

"The senior can has been a tradition in this College for the past fourteen years. It was purchased by the graduates of 1913, and since that time, each senior class has placed a gold ring upon the cane before presenting it to the succeeding class."

"The cane represents the straightforward life and the high ideals of our College. It is an emblem of the strength, high character and honor of this institution. It is a symbol of leadership and responsibility. Every senior class should feel honored to assume the responsibility of its care."

"One year ago, one of my classmates, who was then president of the junior class, accepted the cane and pledged our class, to protect the traditions, to promote the high ideals, and to uphold the standards of the school. I am happy tonight to say that the class has striven with untiring effort to keep this pledge. We feel that we have performed this duty to the best of our ability."

"Now it has become my privilege to bequeath this cane to another class. I shall ask Mr. Burdette Yeo, president of the Junior class to come to the platform. We have great confidence in the members of the class, in whose care we are about to place the cane with its traditions. We know they are worthy, therefore, we do not hesitate to entrust the cane to their care."

"As we place in your hands this symbol of leadership and responsibility we charge you to think seriously of its meaning. May it ever remind you of the dignity and rectitude of this institution. The circle of gold which we have placed upon the cane is not so large as those of former classes. The ring will grow smaller with each succeeding class, but this does not mean a lessening of responsibility, rather it means that the bonds of fellowship and understanding are tightening and becoming a unity in the spirit of our traditions."

"When, at last, some class of the future shall tip the cane with gold, may the ideals which it symbolizes be purified and refined to the highest degree. Look upon this cane also as a symbol of the support that we, the class of 1926, and all other alumni represented by the thirteen rings and the cane itself, stand over ready to give you."

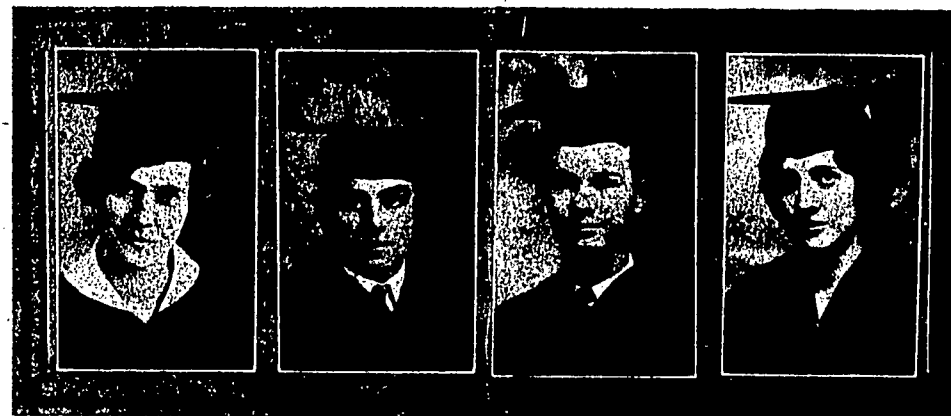

"As you receive this cane I shall ask you to repeat the College oath, pledging anew the loyalty of your class to the college and all for which it stands."

Yeo accepted the cane and the responsibilities which it carries, by the following talk:

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our College, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the College."

To Dear Old Alma Mater

Alma Mater, in the hour of our commencement we pause on thy threshold to offer in simple words a last message of homage, love and thanksgiving.

To you, mother of our intellectual selves, we give thanks for the added enchantment given to life; for the real meaning of brotherhood through student activities; for the friendships made; for increased power of vision; for the noble inspiration from the life of President Lamkin; for the wise guidance of Dean Colbert; for the loving work of Dean Barnard; for the interest and unselfish leadership of Miss Dykes and Miss Dow, our class advisers; and for the treasures of mind we have received from the faculty.

Alma Mater, thy ministering tasks for us are done. With infinite love and patience you have led us up the toilsome mountainside of learning and silently pointed the way to the Promised Land of Useful Living.

The onward flow of years and greater fullness of life will only make our thanks more heartfelt, our homage deeper, and our lives more abiding.

Truthfully and with feeling we shall always sing:

*Years may dim our recollection,
Time its change may bring,
Still thy name in fond affection,
Evermore we sing.*

Big Crowd Enjoys Second Chances in "Dear Brutus" Play

The senior play last night was a difficult play executed in a very excellent manner. "Dear Brutus" is a characteristic Barrie play and is an unusual type for the audience here. Barrie has taken for his theme the desire of all persons for a second chance in life. In the story, the characters go into an enchanted wood where they have a second chance in life. Some amusing things happen while in the woods, husbands fall in love with their wives, wishes are gratified and even the self-cultured Lady Caroline falls in love with the butler!

It is hard to say who starred in this play. Vernon Barrett playing the part of Loh, the host, played a difficult part in a pleasing way. David Nicholson, as the butler, Mary Carl as Lady Caroline, and Evelyn Mapel as Alice Dearth did their work well. All parts though were played in a way that was a credit to all. The cast is as follows:

Mabel Purdie.....Myrtle Hankins
Mrs. Coade.....Faye Townsend
Alice Dearth.....Evelyn Mapel
Joanna Trout.....Helen Marjorie Ferguson
Lady Caroline Lavey.....Mary Lois Carl
Matey.....David Nicholson
Coade.....Carlos Yehle
Purdie.....Russell Hamilton
Dearth.....David Max
Margaret.....Blanche Anderson
A well filled house saw the play. Between the acts, excellent music was furnished by the College orchestra.

Beavers and Ewing Head Tower Staff

In a spirited class meeting of the sophomores held Tuesday afternoon, Byron Beavers was elected editor-in-chief of the Tower staff for next year. Dorr Ewing was elected business manager.

The two new officers will assume their new duties immediately and will make plans looking forward to actual work next fall in producing the annual yearbook of the College.

Jason Kemp, B. S. '25, came up from Gallatin, where he has been teaching, to be present during Commencement.

The Seniors' "Who's Who"

Grace Graves of Fairfax, the president of the Senior Class, will take her B. S. degree. She has been prominent in school activities during her four years in College. Grace has been a member of the Eureka Literary Society, the Dramatics Club, the chorus and a member of the Residence Hall board. Next year she will teach English in the high school at Tarkio, Mo.

David Max of Rosendale, vice-president of the Senior Class, will take his B. S. degree. Max has been prominent in school activities, having been a member of the Philomathean Literary Society, the Dramatic Club, the Social Science Club and Bronze Letter Club. He has served as a member of the Student council and has been active in public speaking work. Max has been elected superintendent of schools at Oakesville for the coming year.

Donald Gibson of New Hampton, vice-president of the Senior Class, will take his B. S. degree. Donald has been a member of the track team and of the basketball squad, the M Club and the Social Science Club. He has taken a position for next year to coach in the high school of Egbert, Wyoming.

Louise B. Freeman of Trenton, treasurer of the Senior Class will take her B. S. degree. Louise has been one of the best known students on the campus because of her position as secretary to Dean Colbert. She has been a member of the Pi Omega Pi sorority, the Green and White Courier staff, and the Philomathean Literary Society.

John Paul Stone of Ridgeway, in many ways the outstanding member of his class, will take his B. S. degree. Stone is a three-letter football man and an all-state guard, and a member of the M Club. For the past two years he has held the Bearcat post of honor in "The Growl." In literary events he has been active and outstanding. This year he won the state championship in oratory and has participated in intercollegiate debate and oratory for the past two years. The last three years he has taken part and won honors in the inter-society contests. He has been

Senior Expresses Appreciation and Looks Into Future

As Seniors, we cannot leave S. T. C. without expressing to our Alma Mater an appreciation for the many privileges which have been ours during the past four years.

We appreciate the type of instructors who have made up our faculty. We will soon forget much of our book learning but we will not forget the ideals which this group of men and women have held constantly before us.

Fortunately, we have been permitted to come in daily contact with such a man as President Lamkin. We will long remember the efforts of Dean Colbert, Mr. Cook's earnestness, Mr. Foster's sincere regard for social advancement, Mr. Wilson's love for truth, Miss Shepherd's interest in the children of our public school; yes, each and every instructor has given us something which will remain a vital part of our "make up" in the years which are just ahead.

As we look back over our past four years, it is only natural that we should feel a slight sadness at parting with our pleasant surroundings. Each room of our College, each nook and corner of our campus holds some pleasant memory.

And then we have come more and more to appreciate our student associates. We hope to see them many times in the future and with them goes our wish for the greatest success in their life's work.

Yes, S. T. C. will ever remain dear to us. Her ideals are our ideals now and we hope to put them in practice wherever we may go.

While the association with our instructors and our comradeship with our fellow-students mean much to us yet we believe there are certain material changes which would add greatly in making our College even more successful than it has been in the past.

We believe that a building to be used as a training school would be a valuable addition, especially since this is an institution to train teachers.

A larger library and more room devoted to study is needed.

A special committee whose duty it would be to give expert advice, particularly to freshmen and sophomores, would eliminate many of the difficulties.

Seniors Present Birch Tree and Books to School

Graduating Class Gifts Presented by Dorothy Newsome and Martha Kennedy—Book Fund Goes To Library.

The gift of the Senior Class of 1926 carries out the policy of the class of 1925. Last year the Senior class conceived the idea of starting a permanent library fund and a sum of money was given as a nucleus of such a fund. This year the senior class adds to that fund which is to be a permanent one. The interest on the fund is to be spent for new books for the library.

The gift was presented by Dorothy Newsome speaking on behalf of her class. Miss Newsome spoke as follows: "Years ago a man in Germany labored for months in his workshops to perfect a clock that would chime out its silvery notes to tell his friends of the passing of the hours."

For twenty years it has been as if a great clock has chimed the passing of each graduating class from the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College. After four years spent in preparing for our larger life, we, the class of 1926, must pass from our small world into the world of experience. During our stay in the College, friendships have been made and bonds have been formed that we hope our passage will not break.

"We should like to tell as we go out from the College that we are leaving something here that will bind us more closely to the students who are in school now, and to those who are yet to come."

"So with this in view we believe that we could do nothing that would bring more happiness to those who are yet to come to our College than to follow in the steps of the class of 1925, which presented a gift in money, as a nucleus of a permanent endowment fund for our College library, the interest accruing from this fund to be used in buying books. This class also presented a plaque upon the surface of which are to be placed brass plates bearing the names of all contributors to the fund."

"The Senior Class of 1926 is glad to have the opportunity of placing its name upon one of these plates as a contributor to such a noble cause."

"Friends of ours, and of our Alma Mater, it is our hope that others may catch the vision that will lead them to contribute to this gift. Then in years to come we may look back upon our efforts and feel proud that we have had a part in laying the foundation of such a great structure."

"At this time in behalf of the Senior Class of 1926, I wish to present to the College our gift in money to be added to the permanent endowment fund for the College library."

In accordance with the annual custom, the Senior Class presented to the College a tree to be planted upon the campus. The tree, a silver birch, was presented just before the Senior play Tuesday evening by Martha Kennedy. In presenting the tree Miss Kennedy said:

"Great men of all ages have felt a peculiar friendship for their forest friends. Under the inspiring shade of sympathetic branches, some of the world's greatest thoughts have come to birth. At all times trees have exercised a profound influence over all mankind."

"The world's history is full of instances when men of great mind and sincere purpose have learned to love some grand old tree as they would a human friend. Poets like Lowell and Whitier had their favorite trees to

Carry Ideals of College Out Into Life, Says Cooper

Baccalaureate Speaker Declares Test of College Training Will Depend on Application of These Ideals.

"You of this class have drilled your minds for four years in College and the test of whether these four years will mean anything to you will depend whether or not you will be able to carry on into your life these ideals of a trained mind which loves truth, literature, music, art, and service to your fellowmen."

This is the test of a college training, the Rev. Joseph A. Cooper, former pastor of the First Baptist Church here, told members of the graduating class Sunday morning in his baccalaureate address on the subject, "What Does Religion Expect From the College Graduate?" In a clear, brief, concise manner, Mr. Cooper delivered one of the best addresses heard from the College platform this year.

A large crowd attended these services. The members of the graduating class, led by Burdette Yeo, Junior president, marched to their seats as the processional, "O God Beneath Thy Guiding Hand," was sung by a chorus directed by Mr. Gardner. The invocation and benediction were given by the Rev. R. A. Mitchell of the South Methodist Church. The scripture reading was read by the Rev. Wm. N. Dewar of the Presbyterian Church and the prayer was led by Dr. C. C. James of the First Methodist Church.

Opening his address Mr. Cooper stated that, "There is no institution of higher learning, except those schools which I have attended as a student, where my heart has been more than here at S. T. C. I count it a privilege to take part in the religious services of this commencement." Mr. Cooper has long been a faithful friend of this College.

"I know of no institution in modern life where the power of an ideal is more apparent, and I want to speak of this," he continued. "There is evidence of that truth in commencement. Graduation has been your goal for four years and commencement has been an ideal. It has been impossible for you to go through this institution and not find in every class and in every activity something definite for which you could work. You couldn't debate without a goal before you, you couldn't represent your society in the contests, you couldn't take part in any athletics. "As you look back over your College life you will remember, not the times you have worked for yourself but the preparation which will make you a better service of mankind. The folks you will honor after these four years will be the ones who have not worked for themselves but for you. The more you have suffered and toiled, the more you have strained and worked, the more College life will mean to you. You will honor more those in S. T. C. who have served you."

The Power of Ideals
"As graduates of this, a teacher-training institution you have not been trained to be church efficiency people. But you have been trained in the all-important religious factors of unselfishness, comradeship, service, and idealism. These are the religious contributions of your College."

You have been trained to know more of your body, the house in which you live; you know more about food, sleep and the interlinking of your body and mind than any people have ever known before. You have received fine training in social contacts in the classroom, in your clubs and societies. But the only value of this training to you will be the manner in which you serve as a teacher, a lawyer or whatever profession you enter."

The Commencement Test
"The test of your commencement is whether you can transfer your college training and college ideals into the service of your country, your state, your home, and your fellowman. You will know in years to come as you do not know now why this period in your life is called commencement instead of the completion of a task."

"Remember Paul's word to the Philippians: Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus. Paul counted himself a servant of the human race and followed that ideal unto death. Paul didn't mean by mind information but attitude, the kind which carried him forth on his mission."

"The test of college is not what you do with your bodies but what your ideals are going to do with your mind. You have not finished college with a

COLLEGE OATH

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our College, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the College. We will strive to obey the College laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in others. We will transmit this College to those who come after us, greater, better, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

THE YEAR JUST FINISHED

The school year of 1925-26 is now history. And what a record is being left behind! Three major championships, in oratory, football and basketball, not to mention the individual victories of each member of the student body. I speak of victories as advancements in education, experience and self-control. Each of us can call some of these victories to our mind. But how did they come about? Primarily, by the sincere co-operation of our instructors.

We have made mistakes, our instructors have made mistakes. Perfection is impossible. Real men and real women admit their imperfections and will not foster a spirit of enmity.

In a certain university there was an old army captain, probably the last word in hard-heartedness and seemingly with not a student friend on the campus. On the last day of school those students, who had taken work under him, gathered, together and presented him with a box of cigars as a small token of their appreciation of the benefit they had derived from his instruction. An unprecedented thing happened. The old captain buried his face in his hands and sobbed like a child. He had taken for granted the students hated him and his method of instruction.

So students, after the last exam is finished and the last bell has rung, let's not leave old S. T. C. and our instructors as if we were making a longed-for escape. Walk up and tell them that their efforts have not been in vain, that they have done you some good. Wish 'em luck and a sincere and sportsmanlike "au revoir."

SENIOR EXPRESSES APPRECIATION AND LOOK INTO FUTURE

ties experienced by upper classmen.

These things will come in the near future and without an effort on the part of the student body. But the factor which will aid S. T. C. most in future years will not be her buildings, equipment or campus nor yet her faculty but it will be the spirit of her students.

We would like to see the time when undue noise in the halls, library, and auditorium would be looked upon with much disfavor by the students.

We would like to see a student body dominated solely by reason and not by prejudice.

We wish to see a united effort for advancement and not several groups each striving to advance its own interests.

Then we would like to see the time come when the students as a whole would dislike to have in their midst those individuals whose aim is only to "get by."

These are changes we, as seniors, desire most, because we wish to see our College in popularity, in success, and in its ability to render real educational service.

Today we leave the College as students, to go out into our respective fields to serve and seek success. But our minds and hearts will be forever harking back to the institution which gave us our training. May the future years bring to us an opportunity to serve as S. T. C. has served us.

"In behalf of the Junior Class of 1926, I accept the traditional Senior cane, symbolizing as it does, the support and encouragement of the classes which have preceded us, and also representing the responsibility of our class to maintain the high standards of scholarship and citizenship in this institution.

"As the Athenians of old kept even unto death their oath to their City, so will we uphold the sacred principles of our oath to this College. We appreciate the admirable way in which the Senior Class of this year has carried out its obligations and we hope to do as well in the coming year. I pledge the Junior Class to seriously assume its responsibility and leadership; to strive to inculcate and foster college ideals and traditions; to encourage and maintain high standards of life and scholarship; and in so far as we are able, "to transmit this College to those who come after us, greater, better, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

26 Kiddies Take Class Violin Work

Monday morning may be Blue Monday for lots of folks but it is everyting else but that for twenty-six enthusiastic youngsters in the College demonstration school.

These youngsters are having the time of their lives for with most of them it is the novel experience of taking class lessons in violin. Miss Helen Dvorak of the College Conservatory faculty is conducting this class. The College purchased four three-quarter sized violins and four full-sized violins, all good instruments, and this instruction is given free of charge.

Yesterday morning when a reporter dropped into the room two youngsters, not more than eight years old, were standing before the class playing. With a pail instead of pair of violins, they might have been taken for Jack and Jill, this black-haired, dark-eyed little miss in the pink dress and the fuzzy-headed, bashful boy in blue overalls. Violins up in place, bows in the proper position, and back and forth over the strings these little hands carried them to the one-two-three-four, of the teacher. The rest of the class listened, each wondering if his term were coming next.

Regular lessons are assigned by Miss

Dvorak and a rotation system permits each pupil to take an instrument home with him at least one night a week. At the end of the term a grade is made out for each pupil the same as in reading or geography. The pupils in this class come from the fourth grade and up. There are thirteen boys and thirteen girls in the class.

"The object of the class," says Miss Mary Keith in charge of the demonstration school, "is to create an interest in the violin and to discover unusual talent. Such talent has been found in several instances and these and other children are enrolled for private lessons with Miss Dvorak this summer." The classwork is unusual, Miss Keith says. Superior training is gained and the classwork has advantages in ear training and in judging one's own work in comparison to that of others.

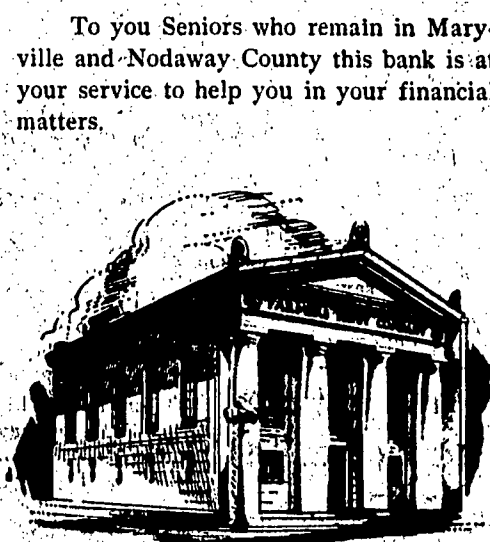

The members of the class are: Emmit Parent, Donald Logan, Beatrice Cox, Leona Ashford, Kirby Bovard, Fern Cochran, Mildred Porter, Delmer

Schooler, Fred Stephenson, John Henry Thorp, Margaret Marie Wells, Joseph Madden, Raymond Deardorff, Lyle McGinnis, Jean Montgomery, Hazel Stephenson, Bohm Townsend, Mildred Bal-lah, Hazel Gates, Charles Healy, Margaret Porter, Fred Schooler, Vilas Thorp, Dora Mae Parent, Sarah Catherine Thorp and Audrey Porter.

Critical Time Is Ahead of Senior, Editor Declares

Edward H. Winter, Speaking To High School Graduates, Says That Training Is Necessary to Success.

"There will be no more critical period in your lives than the one just ahead of you," Edward H. Winter told the members of the graduating class of the College High School in its commencement exercises last Wednesday morning. "I can see no successful life without training for a particular task," he continued. "If your life's preparation is for some particular field in a field of work you love and you put forth your best efforts, you will be successful. Your success will be commensurate with your ideals, your ambitions and your sympathies."

Mr. Winter, who gave the commencement address, is editor of the Warren-ton Banner, president of the Missouri Press Association and was speaker of the program in the House of Representatives of the last Missouri legislature. Mr. Winter spoke on the subject of "The Complete Life—the Obligation of Culture."

Following Mr. Winter's address Dean Colbert presented fifteen members of the class with diplomas. Nettie Mae Woodward played the precession and recessional for the seniors. Mrs. F. P. Townsend, accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Eversole, gave two vocal solos, and Ralph Yehle, accompanied by Elizabeth Mills, gave two violin solos. The band played the national anthem and the benediction were pronounced by the Rev. Guy L. Prather.

Following is a portion of Mr. Winter's address:

Called "His" Class

"I shall call this class my class," he said, "and I should dislike to believe that in my class there will be a single member who will be a dismal failure in later life because of ignorance."
